Helsinki U. Seethes With Student Unrest, First Since the 60's

Student loans, university budgets, and campus governance are issues

By GORDON F. SANDER

HELSINKI

For the first time since the late 1960's, the University of Helsinki, Finland's flagship institution of higher education, is seething with student discontent.

While the previous wave of unrest focused largely on allegations of elitism against the university's student union, these days the chief points of contention are university budgets, student loans, and campus governance—issues that fall mainly within the purview of academic and political leaders.

In essence, today's students want bigger university expenditures, more student aid, and more influence in campus decision making.

'Part of the Solution'

"In the 60's we were seen as part of the problem," says Saara Sokkeli, a sociology major who heads the Student Union of Helsinki. "Now I would like to think that students see us as part of the solution."

The student union was the organizing force behind a major demonstration here this fall after Finnish banks raised the annual interest on government-guaranteed student loans to 9.75 per cent from 8.75 per cent.

Some 4,000 students and recent graduates of the university, joined by supporters from other Finnish colleges, staged a boisterous demonstration in front of its administration building in the capital's Senate Square.

The protest, which came as the university was celebrating its 350th anniversary, followed a controversy last winter over the Academics coming out of it say that Kuwait University and the Kuwait Institute for Scientific Research have been stripped of virtually all their books, furniture, and laboratory equipment, and that forces have converted the university's main campus into a military base.

Kuwaiti professor, Abdullah Al-Jabri, told a press conference in Arabia last week that all five copies of the 18,000-student library had been "wiped out." In Washington, Hasan Ibrahim, director of Kuwaiti Education Center, cited reports that the university's student records had been destroyed.

Regarding the changes for which Mr. Gorbachev are credited, Mr. Dunn credits Mr. Gorbachev are toward academic autonomy; emergence of a new generation of young education leaders; furious growth in foreign-language instruction; pressures on Soviet students to let them take standardized examinations to show their fitness for study in the United States; and more incentives for Americans to teach in the Soviet Union.

Gorbachev-inspired reforms in education, says Mr. Gorbachev, professor of political science at Clemson University, are changes that emphasize "pedagogical ideas of over Marxist ideas of 'totalitarianism'; the introduction of guidance, American-style spirit of introspection and of the Soviet system; and prestige for technical education; and an overriding emphasis on "quality" as the national system is restructured.

Formal Charge Against a Chinese Student Leader Brings Fear and Resignation to Beijing Campus

By SARAH LUBMAN

BEIJING

Students and faculty members at Beijing University reacted with fear and resignation last week to reports that the Chinese government had formally accused Wang Dan, a leader of the 1989 pro-democracy movement here, of "instigating counter-revolutionary propaganda."

Mr. Wang, who faces a closed trial, could be sentenced to a minimum of five years in prison. The action against him brought to eight the number of jailed student dissidents and other intellectuals who are known to have been charged with political crimes in connection with last year's protests. Observers said the accusations suggested that the hard-line Communist government was determined to select a core group of activists to be scapegoats for what has been officially branded a "counter-revolutionary rebellion."

Before the charges against Mr. Wang became generally known, Amnesty International in New York reported that "several dozen prominent political detainees" were expected to be tried soon in Beijing for their roles in the demonstrations of 1989.

Security Efforts Stepped Up

Last week, fear prevailed at Beijing University, which had served as a center of the protest movement. One student, who had been a classmate of Mr. Wang's, declined to discuss the matter in his crowded dormitory room because he said he was afraid that other students might be informers.

Meanwhile, the authorities stepped up security efforts at the university in an apparent effort to deter students from protesting the continuing crackdown. Witnesses reported that small bands of local policemen, armed with pistols, had begun patrolling the campus last week.

News of the charge against Mr. Wang, a history student with a record of political activism, came in a brief notice sent to his parents by the Beijing Public Security Bureau, friends of the family said. The report was confirmed by an official source at Beijing University.

Spain's Decision to Freeze Research Budget in 1991 Deepens Scientists' Anxiety; Gulf Crisis Blamed

By JANE MONAHAN

MADRID

A virtual freeze in the Spanish government's research budget for the coming year, ending nearly a decade of increases, has prompted widespread concern among the country's scientists.

The concern developed after Finance Minister Carlos Solchaga told Parliament last month that, because of the Persian Gulf crisis and Spain's economic difficulties, the 1991 research budget would rise only 0.66 per cent above this year's allocation of about $2.3-billion. After adjustments for inflation, the new figure amounts to a decline of more than 5 per cent.

It is the first such setback for Spanish research since Prime Minister Felipe González's Socialist government was elected in October 1982.

Luis Sanz, a professor of sociology at Madrid's Complutense University who helped organize a recent national conference on research, says the retrenchment has raised fears that "efforts and investments made in the last few years in developing research programs and in training researchers may now go to waste."

"The strategic importance of research in Spain's economic development seems to be less of a priority now," Mr. Sanz adds, "even though the European Community's move to a single market is only two years away."

'A Very Serious Step Back'

Gustavo Villapalos, the Complutense's rector, calls the new research budget "a very serious step back in government policies"—one that he says is adding to the sense of alarm already prevalent among Spanish researchers.

Mr. Villapalos notes that disclosure of the latest budget figures followed a government decision to deny productivity bonuses to about one-fourth of some 16,000 research applicants nationwide after their performance was found to be inadequate by a government-appointed international committee.

Many researchers say that even with

CANADA NOTES

- Shortage of funds halts operations of foreign-student service
- Bigger enrollment of Indian students sought by U. of Alberta
- U. of Montreal begins ambitious drive for major research role

The World University Service of Canada, sponsor of about 550 foreign students in Canada this year, suspended operations last week after the federal government declined to help it overcome a shortage of funds.

The service, which received about $20-million (Canadian) a year from the government, had depended increasingly on contracts from the Canadian International Development Agency, whose own budget was recently cut.

In addition, after a recent move, the service was unable to sell its former office building in Ottawa.

The development agency has established a toll-free national hot line for foreign students who need help. Tuition and other aid provided by the service were expected to be administered by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

In the last year the service has sent more than 400 Canadian university graduates to third-world countries as teachers and development workers.

The University of Alberta has approved a policy to increase its enrollment of Canadian Indians and help them make the transition to university life.

About 125 such students are now attending the Edmonton institution, out of a total enrollment of nearly 30,000. Reinhold Boehm, director of native-student services, said she hoped the new policy would help raise the Indian population to 2,000 by the end of the decade.

The university's efforts to ease the students' adjustment to university life, including smaller-than-average classes in their first year, have been part of an informal program for the past six years.

The University of Montreal, seeking to become a major research institution, has started a national campaign to raise $75-million (Canadian) over the next two years. The figure is $35-million more than university officials originally estimated they would need for the project.

Montreal's goals include increasing graduate-student enrollment, buying new computer equipment, updating laboratories, and endowing 10 department chairs.

The institution also plans 80 faculty members in each of the next 10 years, both to replace retiring faculty and to help expand the program.

The university currently has about 10,000 graduate students and some 40,000 undergraduate students. Administrators say they would like to move toward 30 per cent graduate students.

Montreal's rector, Gilles Gauthier, acknowledges that the university's relatively small endowment is $25-million. He notes, though, that Montreal faculty members and other employees have already contributed $5-million.

This new Carnegie report examines the "teaching versus research" debate in higher education, with historical overview and statistical data. There is an urgent need, the report concludes, to recognize the full range of faculty talent, strengthen the diversity of America's colleges and universities and more effectively relate higher learning to social problems.

Mandela, Accepting Honorary Degree Asks Universities to 'Empower' Black

By LINDA VERGNANI

CAPE TOWN

Nelson Mandela, receiving an honorary doctorate in South Africa for the first time, has called on the country's universities to consider how they might become a means of "empowerment" for the disfranchised black majority.

Speaking at the racially "open" University of the Western Cape, where he was given an honorary doctorate of law by Archbishop Desmond M. Tutu, the university's chancellor, Mr. Mandela proposed that the universities reexamine their admissions criteria to reduce "inherited inequities of the past."

Remarks at Cape Town

Later, in accepting a similar degree from the University of Cape Town, Mr. Mandela, deputy president of the African National Congress, said universities could "set the pace" for democracy by seeking to "empower all sectors of the university community."

"Meaningful student and worker representation on its decision-making bodies will not impair, but will enhance, their effectiveness and legitimacy," Mr. Mandela continued. Then, referring to Cape Town's governing body, he said:

"The composition of the university council in particular should faithfully reflect the community within which this university operates."

Eventually, he suggested, should arrive at a point where the faculty and the student body are reflective of the demographic makeup of our country."

Despite efforts to increase enrollments over the past several years, Cape Town's student body remains nearly three-fourths white. Among entering students, however, the proportion of black students has declined this year to 64 per cent.

Before the award ceremony, a controversy developed over whether Mr. Mandela should kneel before the traditional practice of kneeling before the chancellor. At this instance, Harry Oppenheimer, a South African business leader whom some black students called an "arch-capitalist."

Mr. Mandela, who had knelt before Archbishop Tutu at West Cape, remained standing during the Cape Town ceremony.

"I was prepared to kneel, but I explained afterward, 'but the chancellor was kind enough not to make it necessary for me to do so.'"

Charge Against Chinese Student Leader Brings Fear and Resignation to Campus

Mr. Wang had been placed at the top of a government arrest warrant for 21 alleged student agitators.

Two of the other accused dissidents—Wang Juntao, a magazine editor, and Chen Ziming, an economist—have been charged with intending to overthrow the Communist government, a serious crime carrying a lengthy prison term or even execution in extreme cases.

Among those charged with counterrevolution were Ren Wanding, a veteran advocate of democracy, university lecturers Liu Xiaobo and Liu Suli, and students Zhang Ming of Qinghua University and Zheng Xuguang of Beijing Aeronautics and Astronautics University.

A government official speculated that the authorities were anxious to begin formal proceedings against Wang Dan before elections are held next month for local representatives to the National People's Congress.

The official said government leaders feared that Mr. Wang might be nominated as a people's deputy for the Beijing University district.

The timing of the charges against the intellectuals also may be linked to a perception by the Chinese government that the United States occupation with the Persian Gulf crisis has reduced American interest in human-rights issues in China, a Western diplomat here said.

"China seems to think that the world and the U.S. are so focused on Iraq that it can push the lid on human rights right now," the diplomat, who requested anonymity, said.

"I think they're mistaken," added.

Course on 'Managing the Earth' attracts Students at Kalamazoo

KALAMAZOO, MICH. The windows of a second-floor room at Kalamazoo College are filled with linden trees swaying in the breeze. Inside, students are holding forth on logging in the Pacific Northwest, hunting season in the West, and the effects of tourism in national parks. The students are taking a course, in its second year at the college, called "Managing the Earth: Economics, Politics, and the Environment." Kathleen Human, a senior, says: "People won't try to do something they don't understand. You can't just close them out of the parks to cut down on tourism."

to Stop Littering

Another student argues that as tourists begin to see deterioration in the parks, they will make an effort to stop littering as around their campers and tents. Still another says tourists would be required to perform five hours of community service before being allowed to enter the parks. Discussions like the one at Kalamazoo are becoming more common on many campuses, as colleges and universities create new courses on the environment. At Kalamazoo, Franklin Presler, a professor of political science who teaches "Managing the Earth," says college officials approved his idea for the course because of "growing student interest in environmental studies."

At the University of Virginia, the number of students majoring in environmental sciences rose from 47 in 1986 to 84 this year. Students at Western Washington University are registering for a new program in environmental journalism.

Like undergraduates at other institutions, students at Kalamazoo have shown their concern about overflowing landfills by protesting the use of Styrofoam products on the campus; by recycling newspapers, glass, and aluminum; and by holding rallies to raise their classmates' environmental awareness. Some have had their résumés printed on recycled paper.

Many of the 18 students in Mr. Presler's class say they enrolled to improve their knowledge of environmental problems. Kirstin Lurtz, a senior majoring in English with a concentration in environmental studies, says: "I wanted a forum for more discussion on the environment, and I wanted to see what other students were thinking. I didn't think attitudes would be so diverse in the class—we have everyone from tree huggers to Reagan youth."

Robert Bernstein, a senior majoring in biology, says he is tired of Kirstin Lurtz, a senior: "I wanted a forum for more discussion on the environment, and to see what other students were thinking."

hearing the more "radical" students in the class talk about the environment. Still, he says, "I'm glad I took the class, because I've got to live in this environment and I figured I should probably learn more about it."

Readings from Genesis

Readings for the class include portions of Genesis, the writings of naturalist John Muir, an 1879 poem about poplars by Gerard Manley Hopkins, and recent articles in The New Yorker about pollution.

Mr. Presler says he hopes the students will gain a better understanding of the ethical and scientific aspects of environmental issues.

But, he says, "students won't leave the class with a formula on how to save the environment."

Still, students say the class has been a catalyst, making them more aware of the need for recycling and the importance of decreasing carbon-monoxide emissions.

Jennifer Heck, who graduated from Kalamazoo last spring with a major in biology and a minor in environmental science, was so inspired by Mr. Presler's class last year that she took a job as the recycling coordinator for Michigan St. Clair County.

In a letter to Mr. Presler this fall Ms. Heck wrote: "I can't quite figure out if the classes I took there are giving me more insight into the job or whether interactions I'm having on the job are giving me insight into the questions we posed in class. . . . It's neat, whatever it is." —SUSAN DODGINS

More College Students Choose Academic Majors That Meet Their Social and Environmental Concerns

g to an annual survey of journal enrollment conducted by Ohio State University.

le their concern about social problems is growing, many students say they might not pursue issues in the long term. Some opt for better-paying jobs in the private sector after a few years at a non-profit agency. "I think most students realize going into a career that's going to solve these problems isn't going to make you an incredible amount of money, and they might not be willing to do it forever," says Mr. Schmitts of SUNY Buffalo.

Hunger and Homelessness

Some students are designing their own majors or minors in such subjects as hunger, homelessness, and social change. At Trinity College in Vermont, Kazi Joshua, a senior, designed a major that he called "Social Thought and Action." The major incorporates elements of social work, education, psychology, and business. Mr. Joshua, who is from Malawi, hopes to return to Africa after graduation to help the people there learn more about political action.

Mr. Joshua says he thinks more institutions should design majors that encourage community involvement and civic responsibility among students.

"There has been a big chasm between academia and the real struggles of the people—classism, racism, sexism," he says. "Instead, academia has been providing a massive pool of labor for commerce and industry."

Mary Cassidy, a sophomore at American University who has worked in homeless shelters in Washington, built low-income housing in Florida during last spring's break. She is majoring in international relations and sociology with a concentration in international development, and wants to try to fight poverty and economic problems in third-world countries after she graduates.

Helpful for Volunteer Work

Ms. Cassidy says her classes now, especially one about development in the third world, help her combine her academic interests with the community-service work she has done outside the classroom.

Many students add that they are getting more out of their volunteer work by studying social and environmental problems in class. They also say they are more motivated to volunteer after taking such courses.

"More students are attempting to take courses that cover hunger and homelessness, and they are beginning to realize that these subjects can be analyzed through many different disciplines and aren't limited to sociology or political science," says Wesleyan's Ms. Nugent.

"It's great because it's also encouraging people to volunteer who thought they'd never have the time or interest." ■

Dance Squads Under Fire on 2 Campuses

"But their job is to get everybody riled up," adds Mr. Douglass. "They are a slice of Americana, like the Laker Girls or the Dallas Cowgirls. Everybody looks forward to seeing them."

Adds Katie E. Laurin, a senior at Illinois: "The task force was just looking for excuses when they pointed to the Illinettes. There is a problem with the costumes."

graduate student at Illinois, says the notion that the Illinettes' costumes are sexually suggestive is ridiculous.

"Those are not exciting uniforms," says Mr. Hlavacek. "They wear boots up to their knees. I see people wearing less to class every day of the week."

Members of the dance lines at Illinois and Minnesota, meanwhile, want to put the controversies behind them. On the field, says Minnesota's Ms. Newton, a sophomore, "I don't think about my hips

SELLING SADAM HUSSEIN AND SAUSAGES

Faculty Lecture with Nick Perella

Monday, February 11, 12 Noon
Newman Auditorium, Emeritus Hall

Political opinions are formed in much the same way one sells "sausages" (or any other product). Both campaigns rely on a coordination of events between the "retorical world" of images and the real world. As lines blur between news and entertainment, between rhetoric and reality, it is harder and harder to distinguish between these worlds. When Iraq invaded Kuwait a new "infotainment" era started in the media. Those who use the policy want to sell a view of Saddam Hussein. They also want to use the media to wage a "sophisticated psyops" campaign against Saddam. The media want to sell "sausages." Fortunately, these goals are compatible. The presentation will examine the videos and print articles on the Kuwait-Iraq conflict to see how policies and products are "sold" today.

Nick Perella received his B.A. & M.A. from Stanford. He has taught communication theory and persuasion at SRJC since 1968.

WAGLUH TA TAPI THE NATIVE AMERICAN WRITER A Faculty Lecture with Charlene Blue Horse

Wednesday, February 20, 12 Noon
Newman Auditorium, Emeritus Hall

Native American writer Charlene Blue Horse will discuss the genre of Native American Literature through readings of her own writings and a talk on the role of the Native American writer traditionally, and in today's world. Her lecture will address the question: "What is the intangible but real difference inherent in Native American literature?"

Charlene Blue Horse is an Oglala Lakota poet and fiction writer. She holds two M.A. degrees from Portland State University, and was a Master Poet-In-Residence with the Oregon Arts Foundation for several years. In addition, Charlene has been a Poet-in-Residence for South Dakota's Touring Program, and has taught Creative Writing and Literature since 1972. INTERFAITH CONVERSATIONS

A Dialogue with

Newman Auditorium, Emeritus Hall

Rabbi Wolf and Msgr. Vadakin have been engaging in interfaith dialog for a number of years, as lecturers and as organizers and promoters of interfaith programs. A Roman Catholic priest of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles, Msgr.

Dear Bob:

On behalf of the Thursday Night Market Board of Directors, I want to thank you for your check for $100 in support of the 1990 Thursday Night Markets. As a small token of our thanks we are enclosing with this letter a certificate expressing our appreciation.

Over the 23 weeks of Markets this year, we estimate the Market attracted more than 75,000 people to downtown Santa Rosa to purchase fresh produce, taste the fine foods prepared by local restaurateurs, enjoy the Market entertainment and meet their friends in the festive surroundings.

The production of such an extensive and festive event could not be accomplished without the support of the many cooperating organizations and individuals who provided cash, volunteer time and expertise for the Market. Funding, such as yours, is especially helpful as it allows us to maintain a high quality level for the Market as a whole. It is only by maintaining the current successful level of the Market that we can continue to provide Santa Rosa and the surrounding community with the opportunity to gather and enjoy the bounty of resources and talent available in our county.

Already the board is making plans for the 1991 season. At the October board meeting we voted to continue into 1991 with the same May 2 through October 3 schedule. In November we will have a long planning session to set operational goals for the coming year.

Again, we thank you for your support of the Thursday Night Market and the addition it is to the community. We look forward to your continued support as we plan the Market's opening for May 2, 1991.

Yours truly,

Jim Galaudet, Chairman

GUIDANCE 50

Spring 1991

Instructors: Luz Navarrette, Karen Kellam

Training Manual: Students Helping Students by Steve C. Ender, Sue Saunders McCaffrey, and Theodore K. Miller

This course is designed to train students in the areas of personal growth and development. Students completing the course training will be able to function as mentors for other SRJC students as well as counselor aides in outreach efforts to junior high and high schools in Sonoma County.

This class supports the belief that "one of the most potent environmental influences on student development in college is the peer group. Its influence is most prominent in changing social attitudes and personality. Socialization, as much as information, is likely to have an impact on attitudes toward grades, future aspirations, and life goals."¹

COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS!!

Let us look at the world as if it were a village -- a village with a population of 1,000. In this village there would be 140 North and South Americans (60 of them representing the United States); 210 Europeans; 86 Africans; 565 Asians. There would be 300 white people and 700 non-white people. Of the thousand, 300 would be Christians. Half of the total income of the village would be in the United States. Almost all the affluent part of the village would be composed of Christians from Europe and North America. Over 700 of the 1,000 villagers would be unable to read. Over 500 would be suffering from malnutrition. Over 800 would live in what we call sub-standard housing. No more than ten would have a university education.

Course on 'Managing the Earth' Attracts Students at Kalamazoo

KALAMAZOO, MICH. The windows of a second-floor room at Kalamazoo College are lined with trees swaying in the breeze. Inside, students are huddled together on logging in the Pacific Northwest, hunting season in the West, and the effects of tourism in the national parks. The students are taking a course, in its second year at the college called "Managing the Earth: Science, Politics, and the Environment," Kathleen Human, a senior, says. "People won't try to do something they don't understand. You can't just close them out of the parks to cut down on pollution."

to Stop Littering

Another student argues that as tourists begin to see deterioration in the parks, they will make an effort to stop littering. "People around their campers and still another says tourists will be required to perform five hours of community service before allowed to enter the parks. Discussions like the one at Kalamazoo are becoming more common on many campuses, as colleges and universities create new courses on the environment. At Kalamazoo, Franklin Presler, a professor of political science who teaches "Managing the Earth," says college officials approved his idea for the course because of "growing student interest in environmental studies."

At the University of Virginia, the number of students majoring in environmental sciences rose from 47 in 1986 to 84 this year. Students at Western Washington University are registering for a new program in environmental journalism.

Like undergraduates at other institutions, students at Kalamazoo have shown their concern about overflowing landfills by protesting the use of Styrofoam products on the campus; by recycling newspapers, glass, and aluminum; and by holding rallies to raise their classmates' environmental awareness. Some have had their résumés printed on recycled paper.

Many of the 18 students in Mr. Presler's class say they enrolled to improve their knowledge of environmental problems. Kirstin Lurtz, a senior majoring in English with a concentration in environmental studies, says: "I wanted a forum for more discussion on the environment, and I wanted to see what other students were thinking. I didn't think attitudes would be so diverse in the class—we have everyone from tree huggers to Reagan youth."

Robert Bernstein, a senior majoring in biology, says he is tired of hearing the more "radical" students in the class talk about the environment. Still, he says, "I'm glad I took the class, because I've got to live in this environment and I figured I should probably learn more about it."

Readings from Genesis

Readings for the class include portions of Genesis, the writings of naturalist John Muir, an 1879 poem about poplars by Gerard Manley Hopkins, and recent articles in The New Yorker about pollution.

Mr. Presler says he hopes the students will gain a better understanding of the ethical and scientific aspects of environmental issues.

But, he says, "students won't leave the class with a formula on how to save the environment."

Still, students say the class has been a catalyst, making them more aware of the need for recycling and the importance of decreasing carbon-monoxide emissions.

Jennifer Heck, who graduated from Kalamazoo last spring with a major in biology and a minor in environmental science, was so inspired by Mr. Presler's class last year that she took a job as the recycling coordinator for Michigan St. Clair County.

In a letter to Mr. Presler this fall Ms. Heck wrote: "I can't quite figure out if the classes I took there are giving me more insight into the job or whether interactions I'm having on the job are giving me insight into the questions we posed in class. . . . It's neat, whatever it is." —SUSAN DODGE

Some students are designing their own majors or minors in such subjects as hunger, homelessness, and social change. At Trinity College in Vermont, Kazi Joshua, a senior, designed a major that he called "Social Thought and Action." The major incorporates elements of social work, education, psychology, and business. Mr. Joshua, who is from Malawi, hopes to return to Africa after graduation to help the people there learn more about political action.

Mr. Joshua says he thinks more institutions should design majors that encourage community involvement and civic responsibility among students.

"There has been a big chasm between academia and the real struggles of the people—classism, racism, sexism," he says. "Instead, academia has been providing a massive pool of labor for commerce and industry."

Mary Cassidy, a sophomore at American University who has worked in homeless shelters in Washington, built low-income housing in Florida during last spring's break. She is majoring in international relations and sociology with a concentration in international development, and wants to try to fight poverty and economic problems in third-world countries after she graduates.

Helpful for Volunteer Work

Ms. Cassidy says her classes now, especially one about development in the third world, help her combine her academic interests with the community-service work she has done outside the classroom.

Many students add that they are getting more out of their volunteer work by studying social and environmental problems in class. They also say they are more motivated to volunteer after taking such courses.

"More students are attempting to take courses that cover hunger and homelessness, and they are beginning to realize that these subjects can be analyzed through many different disciplines and aren't limited to sociology or political science," says Wesleyan's Ms. Nugent.

"It's great because it's also encouraging people to volunteer who thought they'd never have the time or interest."

Adds Katie E. Laurin, a senior at Illinois: "The task force was just looking for excuses when they pointed to the Illinettes. There is a problem with our school, but the graduate student at Illinois, says the notion that the Illinettes' costumes are sexually suggestive is ridiculous.

"Those are not exciting uniforms," says Mr. Hlavacek. "They wear boots up to their knees. I see people wearing less to class every day of the week."

Members of the dance lines at Illinois and Minnesota, meanwhile, want to put the controversies behind them. On the field, says Minnesota's Ms. Newton, a sophomore, "I don't think about my hips

Political opinions are formed in much the same way one sells "sausages" (or any other product). Both campaigns rely on a coordination of events between the rhetorical world of images and the real world. As lines blur between news and entertainment, between rhetoric and reality, it is harder and harder to distinguish between these worlds. When Iraq invaded Kuwait a new "infotainment" was started in the media. Those who see policy want to sell a view of Saddam Hussein. They also want to use the media to stage a "sophisticated psyops" campaign against Saddam. The media want to sell "sausages." Fortunately, these goals are compatible. The presentation will examine news videos and print articles on the Kuwait-Iraq conflict to see how policies and products are "sold" today.

Nick Perella received his B.A. & M.A. from Stanford. He has taught communication theory and persuasion at SRJC since 1968.

Helsinki U. Seethes With Student Unrest, First Since the 60's

Student loans, university budgets, and campus governance are issues

By GORDON F. SANDER

HELSINKI

For the first time since the late 1960's, the University of Helsinki, Finland's flagship institution of higher education, is seething with student discontent.

While the previous wave of unrest focused largely on allegations of elitism against the university's student union, these days the chief points of contention are university budgets, student loans, and campus governance—issues that fall mainly within the purview of academic and political leaders.

In essence, today's students want bigger university expenditures, more student aid, and more influence in campus decision making.

'Part of the Solution'

"In the 60's we were seen as part of the problem," says Saara Sokkeli, a sociology major who heads the Student Union of Helsinki. "Now I would like to think that students see us as part of the solution."

The student union was the organizing force behind a major demonstration here this fall after Finnish banks raised the annual interest on government-guaranteed student loans to 9.75 per cent from 8.75 per cent.

Some 4,000 students and recent graduates of the university, joined by supporters from other Finnish colleges, staged a boisterous demonstration in front of its administration building in the capital's Senate Square.

The protest, which came as the university was celebrating its 350th anniversary, followed a controversy last winter over the Academics coming out of Kuwait say that Kuwait University and the Kuwait Institute for Scientific Research have been stripped of virtually all their books, furniture, and laboratory equipment, and that forces have converted the university's main campus into a military base.

Kuwaiti professor, Abdullah Al-Jabir, told a press conference in Kuwait last week that all five copies of the 18,000-student library had been "wiped out." In Washington, Hasan Ibrahim, director of Kuwait Education Center, cited reports that the university's student records had been destroyed.

Whatever happens in the former Soviet Union, especially to Mikhail S. Gorbachev, education reform is his "most enduring legacy," concludes Charles W. Dunn, chairman of the board that oversees U.S. involvement in the eight program of international scholarly exchanges.

Soviet president could fall from power, Mr. Dunn says in a report board, "but the ideas and the momentum he has set in motion in Soviet Union will likely affect Soviet education for decades."

Recognizing the changes for which Gorbachev is credited, Mr. Gorbachev are toward academic autonomy; emergence of a new generation of young education leaders; rapid growth in foreign-language instruction; pressures on Soviet students to let them take standardized examinations soon to show their fitness for study in the United States; and more incentives for Americans to teach in the Soviet Union.

Mr. Gorbachev-inspired reforms in education, says Mr. Dunn, professor of political science at Clemson University, are changes that emphasize more pedagogical ideas of "learning by doing"; the introduction of "quality" as the central theme of the Soviet system; and prestige for technical education; and an overriding concern in "quality" as the central theme of the Soviet system is restructured.

Last week became a landmark for the country of the former Soviet Pact to create a national Fulbright commission in the United States.

Though Hungary has had a Fulbright program since 1977—35 students and about 150 members to American universities—the commission is to help structure, expand, and democratize the process of Hungarian participants, spokeswoman for the United States Fulbright Commission.

Other East European countries, only Yugoslavia has had a Fulbright commission, established in 1964.

Spain's Decision to Freeze Research Budget in 1991 Deepens Scientists' Anxiety; Gulf Crisis Blamed

By JANE MONAHAN

MADRID

A virtual freeze in the Spanish government's research budget for the coming year, ending nearly a decade of increases, has prompted widespread concern among the country's scientists.

The concern developed after Finance Minister Carlos Solchaga told Parliament last month that, because of the Persian Gulf crisis and Spain's economic difficulties, the 1991 research budget would rise only 0.66 per cent above this year's allocation of about $2.3-billion. After adjustments for inflation, the new figure amounts to a decline of more than 5 per cent.

It is the first such setback for Spanish research since Prime Minister Felipe González's Socialist government was elected in October 1982.

Luis Sanz, a professor of sociology at Madrid's Complutense University who helped organize a recent national conference on research, says the retrenchment has raised fears that "efforts and investments made in the last few years in devel-

Formal Charge Against a Chinese Student Leader Brings Fear and Resignation to Beijing Campus

By SARAH LUBMAN

BEIJING

Students and faculty members at Beijing University reacted with fear and resignation last week to reports that the Chinese government had formally accused Wang Dan, a leader of the 1989 pro-democracy movement here, of "instigating counter-revolutionary propaganda."

Mr. Wang, who faces a closed trial, could be sentenced to a minimum of five years in prison. The action against him brought to eight the number of jailed student dissidents and other intellectuals who are known to have been charged with political crimes in connection with last year's protests. Observers said the accusations suggested that the hard-line Communist government was determined to select a core group of activists to be scapegoats for what has been officially branded a "counter-revolutionary rebellion."

Before the charges against Mr. Wang became generally known, Amnesty International in New York reported that "several dozen prominent political detainees" were expected to be tried soon in Beijing for their roles in the demonstrations of 1989.

Security Efforts Stepped Up

Last week, fear prevailed at Beijing University, which had served as a center of the protest movement. One student, who had been a classmate of Mr. Wang's, declined to discuss the matter in his crowded dormitory room because he said he was afraid that other students might be informers.

Meanwhile, the authorities stepped up security efforts at the university in an apparent effort to deter students from protesting the continuing crackdown. Witnesses reported that small bands of local policemen, armed with pistols, had begun patrolling the campus last week.

News of the charge against Mr. Wang, a history student with a record of political activism, came in a brief notice sent to his parents by the Beijing Public Security Bureau, friends of the family said. The report was confirmed by an official source at Beijing University.

oping research programs and in training researchers may now go to waste."

"The strategic importance of research in Spain's economic development seems to be less of a priority now," Mr. Sanz adds, "even though the European Community's move to a single market is only two years away."

'A Very Serious Step Back'

Gustavo Villapalos, the Complutense's rector, calls the new research budget "a very serious step back in government policies"—one that he says is adding to the sense of alarm already prevalent among Spanish researchers.

Mr. Villapalos notes that disclosure of the latest budget figures followed a government decision to deny productivity bonuses to about one-fourth of some 16,000 research applicants nationwide after their performance was found to be inadequate by a government-appointed international committee.

CANADA NOTES

- Shortage of funds halts operations of foreign-student service
- Bigger enrollment of Indian students sought by U. of Alberta
- U. of Montreal begins ambitious drive for major research role

The World University Service of Canada, sponsor of about 550 foreign students in Canada this year, suspended operations last week after the federal government declined to help it overcome a shortage of funds.

The service, which received about $20-million (Canadian) a year from the government, had depended increasingly on contracts from the Canadian International Development Agency, whose own budget was recently cut.

In addition, after a recent move, the service was unable to sell its former office building in Ottawa.

The development agency has established a toll-free national hot line for foreign students who need help. Tuition and other aid provided by the service were expected to be administered by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

In the last year the service has sent more than 400 Canadian university graduates to third-world countries as teachers and development workers.

The University of Alberta has approved a policy to increase its enrollment of Canadian Indians and help them make the transition to university life.

About 125 such students are now attending the Edmonton institution, out of a total enrollment of nearly 30,000. Reinhold Boehm, director of native-student services, said she hoped the new policy would help raise the Indian population to 2,000 by the end of the decade.

The university's efforts to ease the students' adjustment to university life, including smaller-than-average classes in their first year, have been part of an informal program for the past six years.

The University of Montreal, seeking to become a major research institution, has started a national campaign to raise $75-million (Canadian) over the next two years. The figure is $35-million more than university officials originally estimated they would need for the project.

Montreal's goals include increasing graduate-student enrollment, buying new computer equipment, updating laboratories endowing 10 department chairs.

The institution also plans 180 faculty members in each of the next 10 years, both to replace and to help expand graduate work.

The university currently has about 10,000 graduate students and some 40,000 undergraduates. Administrators say they would like to move toward 30 per cent graduate enrollment.

Montreal's rector, Gilles Gauthier, acknowledges that the university's relatively small endowment of $25-million. He notes, though, that Montreal faculty members and other employees have already cost-cut $5-million.

Mandela, Accepting Honorary Degree Asks Universities to 'Empower' Black

By LINDA VERGNANI

CAPE TOWN

Nelson Mandela, receiving an honorary doctorate in South Africa for the first time, has called on the country's universities to consider how they might become a means of "empowerment" for the disfranchised black majority.

Speaking at the racially "open" University of the Western Cape, where he was given an honorary doctorate of law by Archbishop Desmond M. Tutu, the university's chancellor, Mr. Mandela proposed that the universities reexamine their admissions criteria to reduce "inherited inequities of the past."

Remarks at Cape Town

Later, in accepting a similar degree from the University of Cape Town, Mr. Mandela, deputy president of the African National Congress, said universities could "set the pace" for democracy by seeking to "empower all sectors of the university community."

"Meaningful student and worker representation on its decision-making bodies will not impair, but will enhance, their effectiveness and legitimacy," Mr. Mandela continued. Then, referring to Cape Town's governing body, he said:

"The composition of the university council in particular should faithfully reflect the community within which this university operates."

Eventually, he suggested, should arrive at a point where the faculty and the student body are reflective of the demographic makeup of our country."

Despite efforts to increase black enrollments over the past several years, Cape Town's student body remains nearly three-fourths white. Among entering students, however, the proportion of blacks declined this year to 64 per cent.

Before the award ceremony, controversy developed over whether Mr. Mandela should follow the traditional practice of kneeling before the chancellor. In this instance, Harry Oppenheimer, a South African business leader whom some black students have called an "arch-capitalist."

Mr. Mandela, who had knelt before Archbishop Tutu at West Cape, remained standing during the Cape Town ceremony.

"I was prepared to kneel," explained afterward, "but the chancellor was kind enough not to make it necessary for me to do so."

Mr. Wang had been placed at the top of a government arrest warrant for 21 alleged student agitators.

Two of the other accused dissidents—Wang Juntao, a magazine editor, and Chen Ziming, an economist—have been charged with intending to overthrow the Communist government, a serious crime carrying a lengthy prison term or even execution in extreme cases.

Among those charged with counter-revolution were Ren Wanding, a veteran advocate of democracy, university lecturers Liu Xiaobo and Liu Suli, and students Zhang Ming of Qinghua University and Zheng Xuguang of Beijing Aeronautics and Astronautics University.

A government official speculated that the authorities were anxious to begin formal proceedings against Wang Dan before elections are held next month for local representatives to the National People's Congress.

The official said government leaders feared that Mr. Wang might be nominated as a people's deputy for the Beijing University district.

The timing of the charges against the intellectuals also may be linked to a perception by the Chinese government that the United States occupation with the Persian Gulf crisis has reduced American interest in human-rights issues in China, a Western diplomat here said.

"China seems to think that the world and the U.S. are so focused on Iraq that it can push the line on human rights right now," the diplomat, who requested anonymity, said.

"I think they're mistaken," he added.

1. ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT ISSUES

A paper developed by a committee of the Academic Senate was distributed for discussion at the next EPC meeting.

2. DISCUSSION WITH DR. DONALD BROPHY

- New work concentrates on retention, not "drop out."
- New work concentrates on multivariate analysis, not on only one variable.
- New work tends to examine the impact of attrition prevention programs, as opposed to predicting attrition.
- Measures: retention, persistence, GPA.
- Conclusion: want to maximize the "fit" between the student the institution.
- Retention is a measure of the quality of "fit."
- Perhaps 50% of those who drop are unpreventable.
- Action Matters
 - Just talking about retention helped improve the rate.
 - Matriculation efforts are helpful.
- With 75 variables, can explain 26% of variance regarding retention, so there is much that is hard to quantify.
- Past academic performance tends to be the best predictor of future performance.
- Other external factors (job, family commitments, etc.) are hard to assess and can influence retention.
- 50% of students who drop out do so for other than academic reasons.
- A generic problem with retention research is the difficulty of obtaining data on students who are not (and never have been) students -i.e. what obstacles keep potential students from even attempting to enroll.
- Structural limitations.
 - Time a counselor has to help students.
 - Degree of assessment testing system.
 - Use of faculty in advising.
 - Relations with high schools to prepare students' college performance expectations.

- Role of faculty is very important.
 - Departmental incentives.
 - Retention rates as part of evaluation system.
 - Identify those with best intention rates and try to learn why.
 - Use classroom research to focus on retention variables.
 - Recognize best performing departments.
 - Get student evaluation of instructor relatively early in the semester while instructors can still make within- semester adjustments.

- Key factor in retention is making students feel the college and the people in it care about the student's success.

c/o Bob Flores
1501 Mendocino Avenue
Santa Rosa, CA 95401

Dear Bob:

On behalf of the Thursday Night Market Board of Directors, I want to thank you for your check for $100 in support of the 1990 Thursday Night Markets. As a small token of our thanks we are enclosing with this letter a certificate expressing our appreciation.

Over the 23 weeks of Markets this year, we estimate the Market attracted more than 75,000 people to downtown Santa Rosa to purchase fresh produce, taste the fine foods prepared by local restaurateurs, enjoy the Market entertainment and meet their friends in the festive surroundings.

The production of such an extensive and festive event could not be accomplished without the support of the many cooperating organizations and individuals who provided cash, volunteer time and expertise for the Market. Funding, such as yours, is especially helpful as it allows us to maintain a high quality level for the Market as a whole. It is only by maintaining the current successful level of the Market that we can continue to provide Santa Rosa and the surrounding community with the opportunity to gather and enjoy the bounty of resources and talent available in our county.

Already the board is making plans for the 1991 season. At the October board meeting we voted to continue into 1991 with the same May 2 through October 3 schedule. In November we will have a long planning session to set operational goals for the coming year.

Again, we thank you for your support of the Thursday Night Market and the addition it is to the community. We look forward to your continued support as we plan the Market's opening for May 2, 1991.

Yours truly,

Jim Galaudet, Chairman

ABSENT: Amy O'Brien, Steve Olson, Felicia Valente

1. ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT ISSUES

A paper developed by a committee of the Academic Senate was distributed for discussion at the next EPC meeting.

2. DISCUSSION WITH DR. DONALD BROPHY

- New work concentrates on retention, not "drop out."
- New work concentrates on multivariate analysis, not on only one variable.
- New work tends to examine the impact of attrition prevention programs, as opposed to predicting attrition.
- Measures: retention, persistence, GPA.
- Conclusion: want to maximize the "fit" between the student the institution.
- Retention is a measure of the quality of "fit."
- Perhaps 50% of those who drop are unpreventable.
- Action Matters
 - Just talking about retention helped improve the rate.
 - Matriculation efforts are helpful.
- With 75 variables, can explain 26% of variance regarding retention, so there is much that is hard to quantify.
- Past academic performance tends to be the best predictor of future performance.
- Other external factors (job, family commitments, etc.) are hard to assess and can influence retention.
- 50% of students who drop out do so for other than academic reasons.
- A generic problem with retention research is the difficulty of obtaining data on students who are not (and never have been) students -i.e. what obstacles keep potential students from even attempting to enroll.
- Structural limitations.
 - Time a counselor has to help students.
 - Degree of assessment testing system.
 - Use of faculty in advising.
 - Relations with high schools to prepare students' college performance expectations.

- Role of faculty is very important.
 - Departmental incentives.
 - Retention rates as part of evaluation system.
 - Identify those with best intention rates and try to learn why.
 - Use classroom research to focus on retention variables.
 - Recognize best performing departments.
 - Get student evaluation of instructor relatively early in the semester while instructors can still make within- semester adjustments.

- Key factor in retention is making students feel the college and the people in it care about the student's success.

IMPORTANT MESSAGE

January 30, 1991

BOB FLORES
STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Dear Department Scholarship Coordinator:

The SRJC Scholarship Office has developed a "new and improved" process for awarding 1991-92 Foundation scholarships. This new process is designed to assist students as they apply for all available scholarships, and SRJC Departments as they determine eligible students.

One comprehensive scholarship application has been created for Continuing Student Scholarships, and another application for all Transferring Student Scholarships. Please review the attached sample applications. The student deadline for completing all applications is March 1, 1991.

Information from these completed applications is input to a highly sophisticated software program in the Scholarship Office. The software program will sort all pertinent student information and provide a listing of students who meet the eligibility criteria for each Foundation scholarship. This list will provide the following information on each eligible student:

- Name
- Social Security Number
- GPA
- Major
- Financial Need
- Summary of Community Service Activities
- Summary of Campus Activities
- Career Goals
- Any Special Circumstances

Re: 1991 Boat Dance

Dear CSA:

As you may know, there has been a great deal of excitement surrounding the possibility of having the annual boat dance. Towards this end, I have made telephone calls to find out the availability and price of boats for just such a dance.

Last year, we danced aboard the Blue and Gold Fleet's Golden Bear which holds 250 people inside and 125 outside for a total of 375. The cost of this boat is $3,000.00 for a four hour tour and, as of February 7, 1991, is available for the tentative boat dance date of Saturday, May 4. Reservations and a deposit of $500.00 should be made as soon as possible.

Larger boats are available from the Red and White fleet. The Royal Star holds 500 people (350 inside and 150 outside) and costs $6,675. The Royal Prince holds 450 people (250 inside and 200 outside) and costs $5,175. The Harbor Princess holds 350 people (150 inside and 200 outside) and costs $3,325.00. As with the Blue and Gold fleet, deposits and reservations should be made as soon as possible.

If C.S.A. wishes to have a boat dance this year, a committee will have to be formed and the necessary arrangements should be made (e.g. deposit) as soon as possible. If you have any ideas or would like to serve on this committee, please let me know.

Thank you for your anticipated cooperation and consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL S. DOLIN

X. ADJOURNMENT

A. This meeting was adjourned at 5:00 p.m.

AGENDA FORMAT

February 27, 1991

Attention all Commissioners, Officers and Advisors:

As of February 28, 1991 all items of interest must be placed on the agenda sheets between the offices of Bob Flores and Ronda Lewman.

The items must be set on these Agendas no later than 2:00 p.m. on the day of the meeting you wish your item to be heard. In addition, all items that have not previously been discussed in C.S.A. or Executive Cabinet must be brought to my attention for approval as an Agenda item.

Items which are not set on the Agendas before 2:00 p.m. on the day of the meeting may be added at the beginning of the meeting during "Additions to the Agenda". However, these items will be placed near the end of the meeting, after announcements, and there is a chance that they may not be heard.

All items that are new to C.S.A. or Executive Cabinet, and are not discussed with me prior to the meeting, risk a chance of being postponed until the next meeting.

This new idea is to help in facilitating our meetings. It can help everyone better understand what is being presented if I am informed about the item before the meeting. Having all the items on the Agenda before 2:00 p.m. will allow me to budget our time so we can end the meeting at 5:00 p.m.

If there are any questions or you have an item that you would like to discuss with me, please don't wait until the last minute; talk with me a couple days in advance allowing us the best possible chance to help you in your goal.

Sincerely,

Mark K. Van Gorder

A. President: Mark met with Ken Holback, Rick Iwata , and Lee Munson regarding student employee pay raises. A report from Mr. Munson has been received. They are still waiting for a report from Mr. Iwata on an informational survey regarding hourly wages for the area and student employees on other college campuses. NACA was very educational. A lot was learned. Mark's highlights were two inspiring speakers, one was LiLu from Tianneman Square and the other was Mohamed Hakki from the Middle East. Representatives for the following committees are still needed: Arts and Lecture, Facility Planning Committee, Health Service Advisory Board, and Parking Committee. The Committee list is still lacking information. If you can, please add to this list. C.S.A. is looking for someone who would be responsible for bringing "excitement" such as refreshments etc. to the Monday meetings.

B. Advisors: The Thursday Night Market Committee needs a SRJC student to represent the college. This is a full year commitment from January to January. If interested, please submit a short letter of reference to Bob. NACA was a "terrific" conference. Participating as a "seasoned professional" was a beneficial way to be involved. Bob thanked C.S.A. for the opportunity for our delegation to attend the conference.

Ronda reminded everyone who hasn't done so already to recheck out their C.S.A binders for this semester. Are you still looking for your "niche"? An Election Commissioner will be needed for up coming elections. If any questions about the position ask Ronda, Bob or Mark.

C. ICC: The Stop Light Ad Hoc Committee would like the petitions for a pedestrian stop light on Mendocino Ave by Swensen's Ice Cream are needed to be filled with signatures and returned to the committee. OPPORTUNITY INVOLVEMENT PROGRAM

March 4, 1991

"OPPORTUNITY INVOLVEMENT PROGRAM" is a chance to take an active leadership role within the Associated Student government and observe the effects of your ideas.

OPPORTUNITY: An organization such as the College Student Assembly provides us with the opportunity to be change agents. When people perceive a problem or an issue, the students in student government seek a way to effect a positive change. Thus the "OPPORTUNITY" is made available.

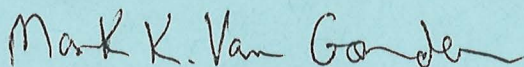

INVOLVEMENT: It will take some work on the part of everyone to address issues within our government and our campus. It will require that those interested take a moment to speak/write what they think or express what they feel. Once we are all aware of a need for action we have the opportunity to help. It will take your "INVOLVEMENT" to make this happen.

PROGRAM: Here is what we can all do to get involved. A box will be placed on the stand near the student mailboxes in which your written ideas can be placed (you should also feel free to voice your ideas with any Officer of Executive Cabinet, but do them the courtesy of writing the issue too so that they may bring them to the Cabinet meetings for discussion).

I will be typing up all written items that are received on a bi-weekly basis and passing them out at the C.S.A. meeting. Each item will have a corresponding number next to it. If after reading the issue concerned you think you have found an opportunity to take an active role, write your ideas down and submit them. Each alternating week I will print out the suggestions and make them available at the meetings. Please try to keep your ideas and suggestions limited to two (2) or three (3) sentences and focused on the way our meetings are run.

This program is not going to change our meetings automatically but it will give us all a chance to make the meetings run smoother. There are three requirements to join the "Opportunity Involvement Program": A PENCIL, SOME PAPER AND AN OPEN MIND!!

Sincerely,

Mark K. Van Gorder

Funds received through this project will be managed & distributed by Sonoma County Community Foundation; a tax exempt not for profit organization.

SONOMA COUNTY COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

"Encouraging a Sense of Mutual Concern"

The sense of mutual concern and caring that lives at the heart of a healthy community does not just happen. It requires conscious effort and attention, and it requires giving: of our compassion and our resources, to those who are in need.

Sonoma County Community Foundation was established in 1983 as a 501(c)(3) tax exempt not for profit organization which allows individuals to contribute to the preservation and enhancement of life in Sonoma County. The Foundation offers a unique opportunity to create a lasting legacy of concern for the county's residents.

Because it maintains a broad perspective on needs throughout the county, the Foundation is equipped to respond to new needs as they emerge.

The Foundation's professional staff carefully researches all potential grant recipients, and the work of the Foundation is accountable to an active Board of Trustees comprised of respected community leaders.

By providing a neutral forum and a means of giving that responds to legitimate community needs, the Foundation ensures that donations remain a significant investment in addressing critical needs of Sonoma County residents and their families.

The Sonoma County Community Foundation's motto, "Encouraging a Sense of Mutual Concern", can be demonstrated through its role in the "Til They All Come Home" event, March 15, 1991. The Foundation will act as a neutral body, receiving, managing and providing fiscal oversight of the funds raised toward a community effort to support Sonoma County families of the troops serving in the Gulf.

Funds from the March 15th event will be earmarked specifically for use of the families of the troops. These funds will be added to the Foundation's Fund for Basic Human Needs, the goal of which is to assist residents whose needs are not being met by existing services. A portion of the funds will be used to meet immediate needs of today, and a portion will be used to meet longer term needs in the future.

As part of its service, the Foundation's professional staff and broadly based and respected Board of Trustees will oversee the distribution of grants to assist the families.

Problem: Administration ordered cheaper envelopes for summer '91 & Fall '91 together, and since there is no A.S. cards in the summer, they decided to do away with our ad (pictured on the left).

Solution: Administration agreed that if we could come up with the money to pay for new envelopes for the fall semester (with our ad), then they would save their fall envelopes until next summer '92. Then we would be reimbursed next year with the money administration would have spent on summer '92 envelopes.

What I Need: No motion today, but by next meeting I will need a motion to allocate a sum (to be determined ~~next~~ this week) out of Spring Special Allocations for the purchase of TLC envelopes for the Fall '91 semester.

PRESSURE ON PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS

1991 Tuition Increases Expected to Outpace Inflation, but Some Private Colleges Will Slow the Upward Trend

By JEAN EVANGELAUF

Tuition increases will vary widely in 1991-92. Some private colleges will announce the lowest percentage increases in years, while many public institutions plan hefty increases to make up for shortfalls in state appropriations.

Over all, the rise in tuition is likely to outpace inflation in the next academic year, according to those who follow college financial trends.

For the 12 months that ended in January, inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index was 5.7 per cent. Observers predict that at four-year private colleges, the average tuition will rise 7 per cent to 8 per cent. At four-year public institutions, the average rate of increase could approach double digits.

Throughout most of the 1980's, tuition rose faster than the C.P.I. at all types of institutions except public two-year colleges. Last year, the pace of tuition increases slowed but still exceeded the rate of inflation.

Tuition setting has been especially painful this year, college officials report. With the economy in a slump, administrators fear that raising tuition too sharply would drive financially strapped applicants to less-expensive competitors or discourage

State University of New York students rally outside the office of Gov. Mario M. Cuomo to protest budget cuts and a $500 tuition increase that the Governor has proposed.

Applications Down at Private Campuses, Up at Public Colleges

By MICHELE N-K COLLISON

Many private colleges are receiving fewer applications from high-school seniors for the coming academic year, while public institutions are reporting increases of as much as 15 per cent.

Although some private-college officials interviewed for this story report increases, many say applications are down—by from 5 to 16 per cent. Small colleges seem to be hurting the most.

Uncertainty over the economy and a decline in the number of high-school graduates are contributing to the drop, admissions officials say. The recession, they say, is forcing parents and students who might otherwise consider enrolling at private colleges to look more seriously at lower-cost state institutions.

'Parents Thinking Long and Hard'

"It's a brand new ball game," says Neill F. Sanders, dean of undergraduate admissions at Vanderbilt University. "Parents are thinking long and hard about that four-year investment of time and money and are telling their children they ought to consider applying to their local college."

Says Tom Wiecekowsky, dean of enroll-

Bleak Economic Outlook Forces Many States to Seek More Revenue From Their Public-College Students

By GOLDIE BLUMENSTYK

Gov. Mario M. Cuomo has long portrayed himself as a champion of low tuition at New York's public universities. When the Legislature proposed a $200 tuition increase for the State University of New York and the City University of New York two years ago, the Governor vetoed it and said he wished he could eliminate tuition altogether.

Now, with his state facing a potential $6-billion deficit, Governor Cuomo is seeking a $500 tuition increase. Together with the mid-year increases already approved—$200 at CUNY and $300 at SUNY—public-college tuition would rise by more than 56 per cent within a single year after remaining unchanged for eight years.

The situation is not unique to New York. Public colleges throughout the nation are proposing unusually large tuition increases. Crippled by budget woes, states are abandoning policies set by college officials and lawmakers that limited tuition increases or required tuition to cover a certain share of the cost of education.

'There Must Be a Change'

In many cases, state officials say they can no longer abide by the old policies because they need more tuition revenue. They say they are already saving as much money as possible through program cuts. The financial squeeze is even creating pressure for higher tuition in California and North Carolina, where traditions of low tuition have long been regarded as inviolable political tenets.

"There must be a fundamental change,"

March 11, 1991

To: Bob Flores
From: Marv Mays, Head Football Coach
Subject: Loan For Off-Season "T" Shirts

As in the past we would like to encourage your support in our quest to put some "LIFE" and "SPIRIT" into our Football Program in the off-season. We are not on Athletic Scholarships, etc. so we are attempting other methods of team unity and commitment this spring, hence - one of our plans is a sharp "T" shirt to emphasize the power of this Football Conference we are currently in and may well be in for the next 3 years.

A sketch of our design is attached - my boosters $ is spent as of now - but we are on an enterprising program id sales now. To get the shirts early (A.S.A.P.) we would like to borrow $ 617.04 to be paid back from our program sales.

Thank you for your consideration on the request.

SUBJECT: SPRING 1992 INSTRUCTIONAL IMPROVEMENT DAYS

This is a formal request that the three Instructional Improvement Days in Spring 1992 support the theme of Educational Equity and Collegiate Diversity.

As a new district-wide committee, the Educational Equity Committee has agreed that its initial focus will be on ethnicity, race, color, and national origin. Topics that may be addressed include: campus climate, inclusive curriculum, cross-cultural awareness, global implications, multi-cultural success, inter-cultural communication, etc.

Towards this end we are requesting the IID committee to consider our proposal. We envision the following:

Day 1 -

bc incorporated

(input and concerns)

Day 2 -

Keynote speaker to be a noted expert in this field, such as, Linda Wong, _____, _____.

All workshops on this day focus on educational equity and/or collegiate diversity including a series of 5 to 7 workshops led by outside speakers funded by 1725 grants.

Day 3 -

Encourage departments to meet. Meeting to include time to prepare a written evaluation (probably through a form they will be provided) of the previous two days of training; i.e. initial department discussion of application of materials/information received and suggestions for future training that would be most helpful.

STUDENT GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

Preamble

A grievance may rise out of a decision or action reached or taken in the course of official duty by a member of the faculty, staff, or administration of Santa Rosa Junior College. A grievable action is defined below. The purpose of the grievance procedure is to provide a process for an impartial review and to ensure that the rights of students are properly recognized and protected. The procedures are not intended to initiate disciplinary action against a member of the faculty, staff, or administration, or to alter college policy.

In the case of a grade appeal, students are directed to Section I.B. of this procedure. In the case of sexual harassment, or discrimination on the basis of race, sex, creed, color, religion, sexual preference, national origin, age, marital status, pregnancy, Vietnam era veteran's status or disabling condition, the Director of Affirmative Action is designated as the person responsible for receiving student complaints. Student appeals relating to Financial Aid decisions, rules, and regulations are directed to the Financial Aid Office in order to initiate the Financial Aid Appeal Process which follows the guidelines established.

Under no circumstances will the filing of a grievance result in retaliation by the party being grieved against or his/her Department.

1. Definition of Grievable Actions

A grievable action is an action that:

- a. Is in violation of written campus policies or procedures, or
- b. Constitutes arbitrary, capricious, or unequal application of written campus policies or procedures.

PROCEDURES FOR STUDENT GRIEVANCES/COMPLAINTS*P R O P O S E D*

Sonoma County Junior College District shall provide a means by which student formal grievances may be heard.

At Santa Rosa Junior College, students who feel their rights as a student have been violated may follow this outlined formal procedure. (If the complaint deals with the assignment of a grade, please consult Section I.B.). The following definitions are listed for clarification of this policy.

DEFINITIONS:STUDENT

Student means a person who has been admitted to enroll at SRJC including continuing status.

FORMAL GRIEVANCE:

A formal grievance means a written complaint filed by one or more students which allege a violation of rights, policy, treatment or wrongful action.

GRIEVANT:

STATUTE OF LIMITATION:

This means that a grievance will only be permitted through the end of the sixth week of the semester following the semester in which the alleged incident occurred.

I. FORMAL GRIEVANCE PROCESS

A. When a student feels that he/she has a grievance, the student shall first attempt to resolve it with the following steps in order:

Step 1 Confer with the person against whom he/she has the grievance. At the request of either party, the immediate supervisor may, after consulting with both parties, name a facilitator acceptable to both parties to attend the meeting with both parties.

If the matter is not resolved at Step 1 the student may then

Step 2 confer with the immediate supervisor of the person toward whom the grievance is being brought.

If the matter is not resolved at Step 2 the student may then

Step 3 confer with the senior administrator appropriate to the individual toward whom the grievance is being brought: in the case of a student, the Dean of Student Services; in the case of a faculty member, the Vice-president of Academic Affairs; in the case of a classified employee, the department supervisor and/or the Vice-president of Business Services; in the case of an administrator, his/her immediate supervisor.

Step 4 If the student feels that the issue has not been satisfactorily resolved by any of the above actions, a signed statement should be submitted to the Dean of Student Services within six (6) school days after completion of Step 3. Copies of the complaint must be forwarded to the appropriate Dean or administrator of the area involved. This statement should specify the time, place, and nature of the incident which resulted in the complaint.

Step 5 The Dean of Student Services shall, within five (5) school days after receiving a signed statement of a grievance, deliver a copy to the person whom the grievance is against and call for formation of a Hearing Board and convene it for a formal hearing to establish facts and recommend action.

B. Grades and Academic Evaluations

2. No instructor may be directed to change a grade except in narrow circumstances authorized by Education Code Section 76224: "When grades are given for any course of instruction taught in a community college, the grade given to each student shall be the grade determined by the instructor of the course and the determination of the student's grade by the instructor, in the absence of mistake, fraud, bad faith, or incompetency, shall be final." Social Advocates for Youth

Serving Youth and Families

Philosophically, our programs are based on the understanding that focused contact with our professional staff enables our clients to achieve greater self-reliance, thereby avoiding the need for more costly and disruptive interventions in their lives. S.A.Y. offers four general types of services. These services are integrated within the agency and coordinated with schools, other service providers, citizens groups and public agencies which are addressing similar or related issues.

Counseling Services target the continuum of problems that face youth and their families, including, but not limited to, substance abuse, runaway, suicide, depression, physical abuse, beyond parental control, etc. Services include 24 hour crisis response, same day crisis sessions, and family group and individual counseling. Counseling services are provided at four sites in Sonoma County.

Prevention Education programs are primarily school and community based. Included are classroom alcohol and drug abuse prevention presentations, training and supervising peer counseling programs, organizing community presentations and forums, parenting education programs and independent living skills training.

Employment Training programs are offered to high risk and economically disadvantaged youth. We currently provide services to at-risk youth in conjunction with schools. Our Summer Youth Conservation Corps provides economically disadvantaged youth with a structured work experience which benefits the community, and our teen parents program provides continuing education, childcare and employment experience.

Shelter Care and Residential Treatment services are available for youth. Short term emergency shelter care is available for runaway youth throughout the county. Our group home for Dependents of the Juvenile Court serves youth who are in need of short term crisis residential treatment and assessment.

In addition to specific services mentioned above, S.A.Y. is committed to working closely with local communities, schools, and citizens groups to promote cooperative efforts to address the needs of youth and their families. To this end, S.A.Y. staff regularly provide training and technical assistance to groups throughout the county. We have participated in cooperative efforts to fight alcohol and drug abuse in cooperation with schools and law enforcement agencies. We are actively involved in the Sonoma County Children's Network. Other examples of these types of efforts include our annual Youth Forum for close to 200 youth and our first annual forum to educate individuals active in drug prevention efforts on how to understand and access local resources. S.A.Y. was one of the founders of the county wide crisis response network which offers schools a coordinated response in the case of suicide or death of a student or faculty member.

We hope you will find it useful in reviewing the climate of your institution, especially in conjunction with the accreditation process, and it is with the self-study in mind that we offer this check list to you for your consideration as a resource.

TOTALLY INTERACTIVE VIDEO

1. Moderate space requirements: All camera movement is generated with "joystick" controls. The subject moves very little in relation to the background. This is how the illusion of movement is created.
2. Titles for each video are chosen by the participant. They can name or title their own band or movie.
3. Video productions include full costumes, props, etc.
4. Exciting and varied backgrounds are custom generated for each video. This gives each product a unique quality.
5. Hundreds of songs are available to choose from.
6. All aspects of production are handled by professional engineers with studio quality equipment thus insuring a "top-shelf" product.
7. An area of about 15' × 25' is required for our chroma key background, lights, cameras, speakers, monitors and control panel.
8. The audience is able to view the video as it is being produced. It's educational and great fun to watch.

KENT RESIDENCE HALL

April 15, 1991

TO: College Student Assembly
FR: Kent Hall Council
RE: Proceeds from Condom Machine Sales
MEMO:

At our April 11th Council meeting, it was decided that any profits derived from stocking the condom machines would go toward a "Condom/A.I.D.S. Awareness Fund" that would:

- help defray the costs of sponsoring A.I.D.S. Awareness Week/National Condom Week annually
- help defray the cost of purchasing additional condom machines for the campus, if possible
- be used for other speakers, activities, etc. associated with condom usage, AIDS awareness, safe sex, and related issues.

Kent Hall Council, if it is chosen to service the condom machines on campus, would not be performing this as a fundraiser, but instead, as a service to SRJC students.

We would like to explore the possibility of reducing the price of condoms on campus, to make them more readily available to lower income students. If this is not possible, we would use the funds generated from condom sales to help support the dissemination of information to students regarding condom usage and AIDS awareness. The Council would then consider part of its charge to be co-sponsoring AIDS Awareness Week and/or National Condom Week with CSA and/or Health Services.

In pursuit of excellent luck

Several readers have criticized some recent columns that suggested business success was largely a matter of luck. They miss my point: If you believe success is mostly due to luck, there are strategies you can pursue to lure luck out of hiding.

(By contrast, if you believe that orderly plans and getting up an hour earlier than the next person are the answer, then by all means arise before the rooster and start planning.)

Want to get lucky? Try following these 50 (!) strategies:

1. At bats. More times at the plate, more hits.
2. Try it. Cut the baloney and get on with (ital) something (end ital).
3. Ready. Fire. Aim. (Rather than Ready. Aim. Aim. Aim. ...)
4. "Anything worth doing is worth doing poorly." Courtesy Johnsonville Foods CEO Ralph Stayer, who reminds us that the first phone and airplane were nothing to write home about — but you have to start somewhere.
5. Read odd stuff. Look anywhere for ideas.
6. Visit odd places. Want to "see" speed? Visit CNN.
7. Make odd friends.
8. Hire odd people. Boring folks, boring ideas.
9. Cultivate odd hobbies. Raise orchids. Race yaks.
10. Work with odd partners.
11. Ask dumb questions. "How come computer commands all come from keyboards?" That's how the mouse was born.
12. Empower. Folks who "own" the task take more at bats.
13. Train without limits. Pick up the tab for training unrelated to work — keep everyone engaged, period.
14. Applaud passion. "Dispassionate innovator" is an oxymoron.
15. Pursue failure. Failure is success' only launching pad. (The bigger the better!)
16. Root out "not invented here." Swipe from the best.
17. Constantly reorganize. Mix, match. Shake things up.
18. Listen to everyone. Ideas come from anywhere.
19. Don't listen to anyone. Trust your inner ear.
20. Get fired. (More than once is OK.) If you're not pushing hard enough to get sacked, you're not pushing hard enough.
21. Nurture intuition. If you can find an interesting idea that's come from a rational plan, I'll eat my hat.
22. Forget the same, tired trade association meetings, talking with the same, tired people about the same, tired things.
23. Decentralize. At bats are proportional to autonomy.

24. Decentralize again.
25. Smash all functional barriers. Unfettered contact among people from different disciplines is magic.
26. Destroy hierarchies.
27. Open the books. Make everyone a "businessperson," with access to all the financials.
28. Share all information. The more real-time information front-line people have, the more "neat stuff" happens.
29. Take sabbaticals.
30. "Repot" yourself every 10 years.
31. Spend half your time with "outsiders." Distributors and vendors will give you more ideas in five minutes than another five-hour committee meeting.
32. Spend half your "outsider time" with (ital) whacko (end ital) outsiders.
33. Pursue alternative rhythms. Spend a year on a farm, six months building houses in Costa Rica.
34. Spread confusion in your wake. Keep people off balance: Don't let the ruts get deeper than they already are.
35. Dis-organize. Bureaucracy takes care of itself. The boss should be "chief dis-organizer," says Quad/Graphics CEO Harry Quadracci.
36. "Dis-equilibrate ... create instability, even chaos." Good advice to "real leaders" from Professor Warren Bennis.
37. Stir curiosity. Igniting youthful curiosity in followers is the lead dog's top task, per Sony Chairman Akio Morita.
38. Start a Corporate Traitors Hall of Fame. "Renegades" are not enough; you need people who despise what you stand for.
39. Give out "Culture Scud Awards." Your best friend is the person who attacks your corporate culture head-on. Wish her well!
40. Vary your pattern. Eat a different breakfast cereal. Take a different route to work.
41. Take off your jacket.
42. Take off your tie.
43. Roll up your sleeves.
44. Take off your shoes.
45. Get out of your office. Tell me, honestly, the last time something creative happened at that big table in your office?!
46. Get rid of your office.
47. Spend a work day each week at home.
48. Nurture peripheral vision. Most interesting "stuff" goes on beyond the professional's ever narrowing line of sight.
49. Don't "help." Let people slip and trip — and grow and learn. As a manager, you earn the bulk of your pay for zipping your lips and letting them stumble forward.
50. Avoid moderation in all things.

Subject: Month of the Young Child
Sender: Joel GORDON / SRJC/01
TO: Bob FLORES / SRJC/01

Contents: 2.

Part 1.

FROM: Joel GORDON / SRJC/01

TO: DISTRIBUTION

Part 2.

The Child Development Dept. would like to inform you that April is designated as the Month of the Young Child in America.

To that end we would like to congratulate the SRJC Board of Trustees who have been designated as recipients of the 1991 Child Care Award of Sonoma County in the category of Significant Contributor. Also receiving an award was adjunct instructor Penny Dalton. The county children's community is appreciative of the college's significant contributions to Sonoma county's families.

While we wish we had lots of rosy things to tell you about the state of California's and America's children, unfortunately that just isn't true today. We ask you to join us in becoming an advocate for our children. What are the issues? Here are a few facts from the Children's Defense Fund's The State of America's Children:1991.

1. Children are the poorest Americans. Almost one out of four American children live in poverty. Here in California the proportion of children under 18 living in poverty is increasing almost five times faster than the general population.
2. We rank 56th among nations in immunizing nonwhite infants against polio. This is behind the rates of Botswana and Albania.
3. Every 64 seconds an infant is born to a teenage mother.
4. Every day, 135,000 children take a gun to school.
5. Every night 12,000,000 American children go to bed without the basic amenities of life--more than the total population of Illinois, Pennsylvania, or Florida.

The good news is that we have programs that can prevent things like this from happening. Preventive investments in children's programs have been proven to work. These include, head start, prenatal care, quality child care and nutrition supplements for babies and pregnant women. These programs save public dollars. We can choose to spend:

$1 on childhood immunizations or $10 in later medical costs.

1 on the prenatal component of WIC (Supplemental food for Women, Infants and children) or $3 in short term hospital costs.

$1 on comprehensive prenatal care for women through Medicaid or $3.38 in later health costs.

$1 on quality early childhood education or $4.75 for later special education, crime, welfare, and other costs.

Please join us in making a commitment to make our community a better place for children. Many community agencies serving children need your financial support. Perhaps you would like to write a letter in support of a program you think is doing a good job. Sonoma County has some excellent programs providing support to our children and families. If you're looking for a way to get involved please call the Child Development department.

Memorandum

April, 1991

TO: All Faculty and Staff
FROM: Ricardo D. Navarrette
SUBJECT: New College Calendar: 1991-92

Last November the Board of Trustees adopted a new college calendar that will go into effect for the academic year, 1991-92.

The Calendar Committee recommends that all faculty and staff become familiar with the specifics of the new calendar and thereby assist the total college efforts in communicating such to our students.

Attached is a copy of the 1991-92 calendar. On the reverse side of this memo is a comparison of the actual teaching days in the former "traditional" calendar and in the new "college" calendar.

Please note these key features in the 1991-92 calendar:

1. There will be four (4) Instructional Improvement Days. All of the IID dates are planned prior to the start of each semester.
2. Final exams will take place five (5) days each semester. The exams will be maintained at the same duration, up to three (3) hours per exam.
3. Actual instructional hours will be virtually the same as prior years.
4. The Fall semester will end by Christmas break. This strengthens the continuity of instruction, eliminates calendar conflicts for mid year transfers and enables students to begin the Spring semester with their Fall grades.
5. The Spring semester will end the third week in May. Students will have an advantage for summer employment. Faculty and staff will have a break before summer session.
6. There will be an additional 4 week summer session in June. While most departments will probably schedule courses mainly during the six week session, the 4 week session provides an option that some students and faculty will find beneficial.

If you have any questions about the new college calendar for 1991-92 please contact myself or one of the members of the Calendar Committee.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

To: All Faculty & Staff

April 29, 1991

Fr: Robert F. Agrella, President

A number of faculty and staff have asked me what contingency plans, if any, are being made to meet the expected demands for more classes next year brought on by cutbacks in the number of class offerings at Sonoma State University and several of our neighboring community college districts, as well as an increased unemployment rate.

Let me outline some of the plans we have developed:

1. We are sending letters to the seniors at our "feeder" high schools, alerting them of our anticipated influx of students so they can take advantage of our Guidance 165 classes and early registration.
2. I have asked the Instructional Office, through the Vice President of Academic Affairs, to review the class schedule and determine how sections can be added within current budget parameters. I have been told that limited growth is possible due to the normal attrition of classes.
3. I have asked the Instructional Office, working closely with the appropriate departments, to develop a "suppressed" or "shadow" schedule of high demand classes. These sections would be scheduled during non-prime time so facilities will be available to accommodate them, and would be funded by a set aside of one-time funds for 1991-92. Obviously, this is not without risk, particularly if the budget picture does not get brighter in 1992-93.

Some have asked why we are even considering an expansion of our classes since we are already over our enrollment cap. The answer, it seems to me, lies partially in the expectations that our community has of SRJC. I believe that if our college is going to maintain our strong community support, we will need to find ways of trying to meet enrollment pressures if at all possible.

As you know from our discussion of SRJC's budget strategy, we are in the enviable position of carrying on our current programs and services even though we will not receive a COLA for 1991-92. Despite that, it is becoming obvious that 1991-92 will be a difficult year. Nevertheless, I remain confident that we can emerge from 1991-92 with the same high level of commitment and quality that has made SRJC the institution that it is today.

Please remember, we are all part of this process. I invite you to share the ideas or strategies you may have for handling expected enrollment growth in a year of limited resources.

Thank you.

Date: 3 May 91
To: Jim Fox
From: A.S. Recycling Committee

Subj: A.S. TRANSFER OF RECYCLING PROGRAM

1. It is a pleasure to see the SRJC campus show an interest in acquiring the Associated Students Recycling Program. The following is the proposed guidelines for the Administrative acquisition of the program.

- The Associated Students envision the Administration (staff employee) will assume in addition to the basic collection of recyclables the following:

- complying with city and county requirements of AB 939
- education: campus wide/departmental
- publicity: foster recycling/reuse attitude through campus publications
- potential expansion into the community
- community source file for recycling information
- maintaining high quality recycling standards (no contaminants)

* The goal of the aforementioned items is to increase efficiency, yield, and buyback value.

- Having established the recycling program the Associated Students have a significant interest in maintaining an active role in the program. The following are our requests:

- the position of Student Coordinator/Intern be continued
- 60/40 split of total revenue generated monthly
-60% Business Services

-40% A.S. Recycling Account

--75% scholarships

--25% incentives

- It is the Associated Students hope that a college wide Environmental Issues Committee be created through the College Council process to oversee the activities of the recycling program. The committee should be responsible for:

-- review process (changes in program/expansion)

-- coordinate bi-annual report (Spring/Fall)

2. Recycling needs to be viewed not as a profit making venture but rather one of necessity.

To: Jim Fox
From: A.S. Recycling Committee
Subj: A.S. TRANSFER OF RECYCLING PROGRAM

1. It is a pleasure to see the SRJC campus show an interest in acquiring the Associated Students Recycling Program. The following is the proposed guidelines for the Administrative acquisition of the program.

- The Associated Students envision the Administration (staff employee) will assume in addition to the basic collection of recyclables the following:

- complying with city and county requirements of AB 939
- education: campus wide/departmental
- publicity: foster recycling/reuse attitude through campus publications
- potential expansion into the community
- community source file for recycling information
- maintaining high quality recycling standards (no contaminants)
- continued and expanded support from custodial and grounds maintenance

* The goal of the aforementioned items is to increase efficiency, yield, and buyback value.

- Having established the recycling program the Associated Students have a significant interest in maintaining an active role in the program. The following are our requests:

- the position of Student Coordinator/Intern be continued and other student positions be created and expanded as necessary

- 60/40 split of total revenue generated monthly
 - 60% Business Services
 - 40% A.S. Recycling Account
- 75% scholarships
- 25% incentives (volunteers)

- It is the Associated Students hope that a college wide Waste Reduction and Recycling Committee be created through the College Council process to oversee the activities of the recycling program. The committee should be responsible for:

-- review process (changes in program/expansion)

-- coordinate bi-annual report (Spring/Fall)

* Please see attached draft of the proposed committee.

2. Recycling needs to be viewed not as a profit making venture but rather one of necessity.

STUDENT HEALTH SERVICES

May 15, 1991

To: Brian Buck
Mark Van Gorder
Associated Students

From: Molly Lynch
Health Services

As we discussed, I am asking CSA for a formal commitment to cosponsor four health related activities for academic year 1991-92. As you know, myriad health risks face our students, and the decisions made now have the potential for impacting their entire lives. As health care providers (Health Services) and student advocates (Associated Students), I believe we make perfect "partners" for campus health promotion.

The events I am suggesting, save one, are all national observances, and college students all over the country participate in similar programs. The dates are:

National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week	October 13-18
Great American Smokeout	November 21
National Condom Week	February 10-14*
SRJC AIDS Awareness Week	April 13-17*

*tentative

In order to make this commitment, I believe it is important to appoint the 1991-92 Health Services Commissioner as soon as possible. This person would not only serve as a liaison between the Associated Students and the Health Services Advisory Committee but also work with the Program Chair and Health Services staff in coordinating these events. Ideally, we would have the summer months to brainstorm, establish timelines and priorities and orient this person to the Health Services operation.

I appreciate your consideration of this request and look forward to discussing it with CSA on Monday.
